It is July and that means summer is here! For many kids this means the end of school, but this shouldn't mean the end to learning. The summer can be a time of great exploration and experiences, however it may also cause something known to educators as the "summer slide."

According to the National Summer Learning Association, "A conservative estimate of lost instructional time is approximately two months or roughly 22 percent of the school year...It's common for teachers to spend at least a month re-teaching material that students have forgotten over the summer. That month of re-teaching eliminates a month that could have been spent on teaching new information and skills."

The best way to prevent the summer slide is for parents, care givers, and family friends to get their children involved in the city-wide Summer Reading Program (SRP) happening at one of their Albany community libraries. Our staff have crafted an excellent array of programs to engage young minds that might go idle during those hot days of July and August. Help us build recreational readers in our community by encouraging the youth in your family and community to take part in this year's SRP.

If you are an adult, the library also has plenty of things to do during your downtime this summer. Don't forget to bookmark our website or download our app so you can still use library services on those road trips and weekend getaways. We also have a collection of trade paperbacks and audio books to take with you on vacation. When you aren't traveling, come to the library to enjoy some programs, learn some things in our Albany Made maker space, or just cool off in our air conditioned buildings. Enjoy a great summer.
