FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Meet with the Director

Scott holds office hours at APL branches and invites patrons to discuss their thoughts about the library with him. Appointments are strongly suggested and can be made by emailing jarzombeks@albanypubliclibrary.org.

🕒 Nov. 1 (Tues) at 12:00 pm-5:00 pm

Every once in a while, a popular television show or movie will make a joke about public libraries and the people who use them. The less fortunate almost always come up whenever there is an article about library funding or new programming, and these patrons are portrayed in a less than positive light. When I was younger, a friend of a friend said to me, "You work in a public library; only poor people go there." Even librarians talk about it. Many of us have a gallows humor about what we do and how little the public understands it. The fact is, libraries are a resource for people in poverty and on the margin of our society. I don't think we should run away from it; in fact, we should embrace it.

I was raised to do service. This value came partly from my family's religion and also because my parents thought it made you a stronger person. Volunteering was something I did from a young age, and I spent a considerable amount of time doing it in college. It was during that time I realized that you could actually make service your living.

Service is what brought me to this profession. I think about the quote from the 80s romantic comedy (and one of my favorite films) "Say Anything." The lead character meets his girlfriend's father, and when asked about his future he replies:

"I don't want to sell anything, buy anything, or process anything as a career. I don't want to sell anything bought or processed, or buy anything sold or processed, or process anything sold, bought, or processed, or repair anything sold, bought, or processed. You know, as a career, I don't want to do that."

This became a mantra for me at a young age. While I wasn't totally successful in living up to the quote, since we do buy stuff at the library, I do think I got as close to this ideal as possible. I love that the work I do at the library helps foster our city's sharing community.

When you enter the library, remember that the people who work here chose a life of service. Remember that they were led to this profession out of a need and want to help people. Librarians are intelligent and highly-educated people who chose a job that isn't always thankless, but is often misunderstood. Librarians are many things, but most of all we are people who chose to help people understand the world a little better. We are guides through an ever more complex world, and navigators in an information age that has left many behind. Librarians are a group of people who have stayed a few steps behind when they could have run ahead.

As we enter the holiday season, we should be kinder to those who do not have it as good as we do. The library is the community's 3rd place, where everyone is welcome. I love the idea that the library is a place where people at all stages of life and at all levels of economic prosperity meet. Attending the same program, browsing the same shelves, and sometimes just sitting across from each other at a table. The truth is the library is full of one thing: your neighbors, the people who you share this city with. And they are in this library because it is the great equalizer.

FRIENDS OF APL BOOK TALKS

The Friends of Albany Public Library host regular book reviews, author talks, and special presentations every Tuesday at 12:15 pm at the Washington Ave. Branch.

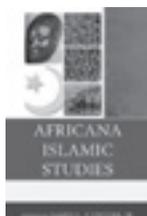

You can keep up with Friends news on Facebook. Search for Friends of Albany Public Library.

Nov. 1— Author Talk

Steven B. Sandler on Tea with Freud: An Imaginary Conversation about How Psychotherapy Really Works

Sandler, a psychiatrist at Albany Medical Center, discusses his book, which provides an introduction to psychotherapy that is part case study and part fiction.

Nov. 8—Book Review

Africana Islamic Studies by James L. Conyers & Abul Pitre

This academic book recounts how African Americans have influenced the formation of Islam in this country. Daphne Chandler, an assistant professor in the University at Albany's Department of Africana Studies, reviews the work.

Nov. 15—Book Review

Killing a King: The Assassination of Yitzhak Rabin and the Remaking of Israel by Dan Ephron

The Washington Post calls this book "carefully reported, clearly presented, concise and gripping." The reviewer is Stephen Berk, a professor of Holocaust and Jewish studies at Union College.

Nov. 22—Author Talk

Mildred Smith-Chang on The Mask is Off

The Jamaican native, who now lives in Albany and teaches Spanish, shares her first-person account of coming to America and how our country's immigration system slowly came into focus through her experiences.

Nov. 29—Special Program

Gifts for Grandchildren: What's New in Children's Books

APL youth services librarians talk about new books for children and teens, and give advice on what titles would make good gifts for grandchildren.

Dec. 6—Book Review

The Devil's Chessboard: Allen Dulles, the CIA, and the Rise of America's Secret Government by David Talbot

Library Journal says this book "portrays Allen Dulles as the dark prince of the Cold War who manipulated the media, deceived presidents, helped stir up coups... [and might] have been involved in Kennedy's assassination." The reviewer is Eugene Farley, a retired professor of accounting from Siena College.

Dec. 13—Book Review

The Art of Biblical Narrative by Robert Alter

In the 35 years since it was originally published, this book has been credited with helping expand "biblical scholarship by recasting the Bible as a work of literary art deserving studied criticism." Rabbi David Gordis, past president of Hebrew College in Newton, MA, reviews the book.

Dec. 20—Holiday Concert Albany High School Choir

Brendan Hoffman directs these talented singers as they entertain us with a variety of holiday songs.

Dec. 27—Book Review

Vinegar Girl: A Novel by Anne Tyler

W magazine calls this work "a quirky tale that transports Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew to Tyler's modern-day Baltimore, where a father's attempt to shoehorn his daughter into a green-card marriage has, of course, an unintentionally happy ending." University at Albany Professor of English Martha Rozett reviews Tyler's book.

Metroland Newspapers in Collection

The library's Local History Collection contains an incomplete run of Metroland, "the Capital Region's alternative newsweekly." The now-defunct weekly newspaper donated back issues to the library which have been bound in volumes and are available to view in the Local History Room. The current Metroland volumes feature issues that were printed between 1988 and 2015. We are looking for missing issues to add to the collection. Please note that the Metroland collection is rare and APL has the only known bound volumes of the paper.

For viewing only during Local History Room hours (see listing of hours in this section)

Washington Ave. Branch (2nd Floor, Local History Room)

Online Collection of Historic Albany Photos

We are continuously adding images from our library's collection of historic Albany photographs to the New York Heritage website. To view photos of old Albany businesses, residential Albany, urban renewal, and others, visit the site and select Albany Public Library from the collections tab.

Online at nyheritage.org

RAISING A READER

Parents, did you know that reading out loud to a child is the best way to prepare him for reading success? Every time you read to your baby, toddler, or preschooler, her vocabulary and language skills grow.

Our Raising a Reader program helps prepare young children for a lifetime of literacy by making it easy to track how often they hear books read aloud. The program is simple, free, and done at your own pace. Its rewards are priceless!

Register your little reader today at any APL location. Visit your favorite branch to learn more about Raising a Reader. Our librarians also have helpful tips for those just getting started reading to their little ones.
